

Cornell University Law School
Clarke Program in East Asian Law and Culture, and
University of Tokyo
Institute of Social Science

PRESENT:

An international conference on

Hope in Law and the Economy

INTERNATIONAL HOUSE OF JAPAN, TOKYO

OCTOBER 14, 2008 ■ 10:00AM – 5:00PM

Cornell University
Law School

Lawyers in the Best Sense

Hope in Law and the Economy

An interdisciplinary conference exploring the roles that legal and market institutions play in the social and global distribution of human hopefulness.

CONFERENCE PARTICIPANTS:

Gregory ALEXANDER, A. Robert Noll Professor of Law, Cornell Law School

GENDA Yuji, Professor, ISS, University of Tokyo

ISHIKAWA Hiroyasu, Associate Professor, ISS, University of Tokyo

KASUGA Naoki, Professor of Anthropology, Osaka University

KOMORIDA Akio, Director, ISS, University of Tokyo

MIYAZAKI Hirokazu, Associate Professor of Anthropology, Cornell University

Annelise RILES, Clarke Professor of Far East Legal Studies, Cornell Law School

SAKAGUCHI Shojiro, Professor of Law, Hitotsubashi University

SAKAI Naoki, Professor of Asian Studies and Comparative Literature, Cornell University

Stewart J. SCHWAB, Allan R. Tessler Dean and Professor of Law, Cornell Law School

Chantal THOMAS, Professor of Law, Cornell Law School

UNO Shigeki, Associate Professor, ISS, University of Tokyo

Cornell University Law School Clarke Program in East Asian Law and Culture fosters collaboration across disciplines and cultures that brings to light new questions and new answers on subjects of pressing contemporary concern.

The mission of the Institute of Social Science is to conduct empirical studies using historical and comparative perspectives, and to contribute to a social scientific understanding of Japan and of the world.

Together, their scholarly network models a new and deeper collaboration around interdisciplinary topics in law and the social sciences.

For more information, or to rsvp to attend the conference, please visit:
project.iss.u-tokyo.ac.jp/hope/symposium/081014_conference.html

Cornell University
Law School

Lawyers in the Best Sense

Clarke Program in East Asian Law and Culture
Myron Taylor Hall, Ithaca, NY 14853